Doctor Kuhn did a wonderful job with the class, made difficult course material easy to understand, he was very insightful. The class is very well planned and organized and his supplemental material really helped.

I think school should pay for proctor u

Instructor knows what they're talking about. I would however recommend it be advised to use Excel or a similar spreadsheet program to go along with Statcrunch. Provided you know the formulas it can be a nice tool to go along with Statcrunch.

It was terrible taking every test or quiz on my math lab because if you were slightly off you got the whole problem wrong. It was awful having to take tests online on proctor u because we had to pay to take the test and the whole thing was an inconvenience for students and more of a convenience for the professor. It was ridiculous to have to print out 20-30 page notes every week for a lecture to get class credit

Prof. Kuhn does a great job.

If a student puts in the time, follow the book, reviews Dr Kuhn's info that is available (even if taking the online class, and completes their homework they should pass this class without issue. Dr Kuhn makes himself available several different ways and timely in emails to students.

Suggestions: Proctor U's process sucks. It routinely takes 15-20 minutes for them to do their preparations for me to begin my exam/quiz on one of my quizzes their service dropped off on their end and cost me 25% of my quiz time while they resolve their issue. I could see the exam, I could see and hear them but they locked me out while they resolved their issue. Unacceptable.

The final prep is ridiculously long with the 80% requirement. Nothing wrong making that many questions available, perhaps the requirement for taking the final could be relaxed below 80% requirement. "Dead Week" should be dead.

Taking this course online was a great thing for me. Professor Kuhn has it well organized and you are able to flow through the course with ease. Professor Kuhn is also very caring and understanding when it comes to his students. Highest remarks.
